Petitions Ask For Unifying

REASONS Reasons for the circulation locally of the petitions, it is pointed out, is that the Board of Supervisors proposes to build a Superior Court Building in the area bounded by Temple Street, North Hill street, the Freeway and North Grand Avenue, at a cost of nearly eleven million dollars; to lease and later buy, a Municipal Court Building at a cost of more than five million dollars. The Law Library Trustees propose to build a County Law Library Building of land purchased by the County at a probable minimum cost of one and one-half million dollars. Both Courts and the Law Library are closely related in function and should be housed in one building or adjacent buildings on one site and not three urge the petitioners. The site should be easily accessible to all the citizens of the City and County and the other public buildings in the Civic Center.

After nearly five years of tremendous telephone expansion in Southern California, The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company's Southern California motor fleet has been increased almost 96 per cent, he said. During the same period, nearly 600,000 telephones have been added in the company's 79 Southern exchanges for a total today of more than 1,620,000. The telephone vehicles, which include 13 different makes and 30 body types, represent an investment that exceeds $6,000,000. Until Dr. J. S. Aggarwal and S. C. Sethi of National Chemistry Laboratory in Poona, India, discovered that pepper, nutmeg and caraway not only season but prevent edible fats from turning rancid, it was thought spices were added, particularly in tropical countries, to cover up rancidity or decay. Other spices which will preserve fats are cumin, cinnamon leaf, cloves, pepper, fenel tumeric and red chillies.

Business Men Request Zoning of 101 Hiway

LOMITA.—Businessmen of Lomita, headed by John Woodman of Woodman's Office Supply Co., are expected to present the County Regional Planning Commission with petitions requesting spot zoning of Pacific Coast Highway this morning.

Expected to accompany Woodman as a delegation are Sy Hopkins, Sam Norfolk, Jim Schmitt and Edith (Smith) Carragage. "We're expecting some opposition," said Woodman, "but not enough to matter. Opposition is not expected to be organized, and the Anti-Zoning League, have agreed that they will not oppose the zoning of the highway to a C-3 commercial. An official of the anti-zoning Lomita property owners and registered voters association said a survey showed that about 95 percent of the property owners on the highway were in favor of zoning, causing the group to withdraw from the matter. Woodman said the only difficulty expected now in the effort to zone the highway will be the reluctance of the planning commission to spot zone an area. Two hearings on the matter will be held by the planning commission, which will then send the request to the board of supervisors for another hearing and a final decision. Woodman said. The process will take approximately two months.
